commenced an investigation of a dry-cleaning facility and its storage of an unknown liquid contained in barrels at the facility. Laboratory analysis of the samples confirmed high concentrations of tetrachloroethylene (a dry cleaning solvent), benzene, ethlybenzene, and tolulene and exylene. The liquid in the barrels was classified as "special waste" and was therefore subject to specific storage, handling, transport and disposal requirements under legislation. The dry-cleaning facility was sentenced in British Columbia, pursuant to the Waste Management Act, for failure to properly store the liquid "special waste" in accordance with the Special Waste Regulation, and as part of a court order, the dry-cleaning facility was to come into compliance with the Special Waste Regulation, including that they were required to post a bond to ensure compliance. The dry-cleaning facility in Princeton, British Columbia consigned a trucking company in British Columbia to haul a Fruehauf transport trailer holding 12,000 litres of a liquid waste to Acme, Alberta. The trailer was delivered to the site in Acme and the driver was directed by Brian Hannah and/or a representative of Hannah Transport Ltd. to park the trailer in an open field near the northwest corner of the site. The accompanying manifest identified the substances in the barrels as 12,000 L of "waste mineral spirits". An Alberta Environment investigator attended the site and sampled 31 of the barrels inside the trailer for the purposes of confirming the nature of the liquid substances in the barrels, and the screening indicated the unknown liquid substance was highly flammable with the presence of BTEX (benzene, tolulene, ethylbenzene and xylene) compounds, and some of the barrels tested positive for the presence of chlorinated solvents, being an indicator of perchloroethylene (perc), a dry-cleaning solvent. There were a total of 60 barrels loaded on the trailer containing unknown liquid substances, there was liquid present on top of the lids of the barrels and on the floor of the trailer, and there was evidence of

ARC Resources Ltd.	EPO Mountain View NW 35-33-5-5	30-Sep-03	AEPEA(R) 113	The Company is the current lease holder of the lands for the purpose of a currently producing well. During a meeting with Alberta Environment [AENV], based on the Company's own information, it stated that there may be a contamination associated with the lands. The Company planned to undertake some soil sampling and would submit the resulting analyses to AENV. A soil investigation program conducted by the Company revealed that little, if any remedial work had been completed by the former lease holder. The Company began excavation of the former flare pit area, and a further delineation program was then undertaken by the Company, followed by a remediation program. The Company's consultant submitted the reports to AENV, summarizing the findings of the remediation program. Further remediation of the contaminated material could not continue without compromising the Natural Gas Line [Line]. An AENV chemist completed a review of the then current findings and analyses of the soils investigation of the land. The Operator agreed to a plan to relocate the Line to allow the company to complete the remediation activities and submitted a report, to AENV, on the histories and integrities of the Line and the results of sampling conducted in the proposed relocation route of the Line. The Company's consultant submitted a report, which stated that comparative analysis of contaminant samples from the excavations show that the two are not related, and confirmed that the Company had not completed it's delineation or reclamation of the contamination. The Company sent a letter to AENV, which stated that it did not accept responsibility of all the contamination discovered and indicated that it would not continue to carry out remedial actions without formal direction from AENV. AENV is of the opinion that a release of hydrocarbons has occurred and that the release of these substances resulted in an adverse effect, and that remedial action is required. The Company shall remediate any hydrocarbon contamination of soil, surface water or
